Gaming Dreams

The room was full of many things. There was the somber glow of the television. There was the heavy breathing of two brothers, and their dog. There was the low hum of the ceiling fan above. But, most importantly, there were dreams.

Now, these were not regular dreams. Max and his twin sibling, Jeebs, had stayed up way past their bedtime. In fact, they had fallen asleep while playing a new video game. So, they were now dreaming they were in the game itself.

Max and Jeebs were safe, and asleep, on the floor. But, in their dreams they were fighting monsters, just as in the video game. They battled these electronic beasts over and over again in their minds. But, then Max suddenly sat up and screamed. This caused Jeebs to awaken and shriek too. Even their dog, Tootsie, was on alert. She barked loudly. “Let’s not fall asleep while playing games again,” said Max. “They give me nightmares.”
